

The Scholar & The Library

Recent Research in the Arts,
Humanities, and Social Sciences

A 2008/2009 Library Speaker Series

Rebecca Holderness

Assistant Professor, UWM Department of Theater

Flights of Fancy: A discussion and slide show

Scene from the Holderness Theater Company production of Einstein's Dreams at the Culture Project in New York City

February 20, 2009, 2-3 pm

Room E281 (second floor, east wing; adjacent to the Music Library)

Golda Meir Library, UW-Milwaukee

Rebecca Holderness will discuss instances where library research and resources were instrumental in developing live theater performance and production. The discussion will include phases of the creative theater process, and how and what kind of research might impact those processes. Holderness will share slides of performances as well as show dramaturgy notebooks from past performances, including the UWM Mainstage productions of Of Mice and Men (spring 2008) and 1001 (fall 2008).

Prof. Holderness is a nationally recognized theater and film director, and for many years was proprietor and director of the New York City-based Holderness Theater Company. She teaches acting and movement at UWM.

For more information contact Special Collections, UWM Libraries, (414) 229-4345